MESSAGE FROM THE CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER

I am delighted to present an intricate chronicle of the accomplishments achieved by Adarsh Shiksha Samiti during the dynamic period spanning 2023-2024. This epoch has been punctuated by remarkable strides as we fervently pursued our mission to effect transformative change in the lives of society's most overlooked segments, including bait farmers, adolescents, women, and children dwelling in the peripheries where our intervention is acutely needed.

Our multifaceted initiatives encompassed a spectrum of impactful activities. The Asha Kiran Centre emerged as a crucible for the reintegration of school dropout children, instilling hope and educational opportunities where there was previously none. In tandem, our relentless efforts were channeled into empowering disenfranchised youths through meticulously designed vocational training programs, a strategic avenue to break the shackles of limited opportunities.

The canvas of our impact widened with our commitment to infrastructure development. Noteworthy among these efforts was the construction of toilets under the aegis of the Total Sanitation Campaign - Swachh Bharat Mission, underscoring our dedication to fundamental sanitation needs that significantly contribute to community health and dignity.

Education, as a cornerstone of empowerment, materialized in the establishment of Adarsh Shiksha Mandir - Upper Primary School at Seriya. This served as a testament to our commitment to providing quality education, a crucial instrument for breaking the cycles of poverty and ignorance.

In the realm of technological literacy, the operation mobilization of the Adarsh IT Gyan Kendra symbolizes our forward-looking approach to equip communities with the skills necessary for the digital age. Meanwhile, the creation and nurturing of Self- Help Promoting Institutes (SHPI and Swadharini) empowered tribal women, fostering self-reliance and community cohesion.

Venturing into significant projects such as the IPD project and the Panchayati Raj program, we broadened our purview, addressing critical issues that underpin community development. Simultaneously, our responsive measures to societal exigencies were evident in the meticulous execution of dry ration distribution and a comprehensive awareness campaign addressing the challenges posed by the COVID-19 pandemic.

The Shaktidayini Project, aimed at combating domestic violence, stands as a testament to our commitment to addressing pervasive social issues. This initiative reflects our steadfast determination to create safe spaces for vulnerable individuals, particularly women facing domestic abuse.

I extend my heartfelt gratitude to my esteemed colleagues, whose unwavering commitment has been pivotal in upholding the noble traditions of our organization. With a tenure exceeding twenty-seven years, our collective experience underscores a nuanced understanding that the juggernaut of globalization often overshadows individual needs, societal welfare, and even governmental initiatives.

Despite commendable governmental interventions and progressive legislations such as the Right to Employment, the stark reality persists: tribal communities find themselves ensnared in distress migration. As we reflect on our collective journey, the realization dawns that our odyssey has merely begun, with an intricate tapestry of challenges awaiting our concerted efforts.

In all our interventions, we have strived not only to address immediate concerns but also to elevate the discourse on globalization and its alternatives, propelling it to the forefront of public consciousness. Your unwavering support remains indispensable to our continued success, and I am confident that discerning readers will find this report not only informative but also a compelling testament to the transformative impact that sustained commitment can achieve.

Mr. Shashi Bhushan
Chief Executive Officer

WHO WE ARE:

Adarsh Shiksha Samiti, colloquially known as "Adarsh," stands as a non-profit, non-governmental organization that germinated from the collective efforts of impassioned volunteers in the Salumber Block of Udaipur District, situated in the State of Rajasthan. Its formal inception materialized in 1989, culminating in official registration under the Rajasthan Society's Registration Act (1958). Subsequently, the organization earned recognition under various legal frameworks, including the Foreign Contribution Regulation Act, 1976 (FCRA 1976), 80G, 12A, CSR1, and NITI Aayog.

Over the years, Adarsh has meticulously constructed a platform that serves as a catalyst for addressing a spectrum of issues pertaining to the well-being of the tribal population. The organization has emerged as a formidable force, effectively engaging with the government and various development agencies operating in the region to seek solutions and advocate for the welfare of the marginalized communities.

The overarching vision of Adarsh is to foster the creation of an equitable and just society where vulnerable and marginalized segments actively participate in their own social development, ultimately exerting control over local resources. To actualize this mission, Adarsh embarked on a multi-faceted strategy, commencing with the initiation of awareness programs on diverse social and economic issues. This initial phase sought to dispel the haze of lethargy, ignorance, and resistance to abandoning impractical traditions.

Having successfully cleared the path of inertia and cultural resistance, Adarsh transitioned into implementing socio-economic development programs. Collaborating with both governmental bodies and prominent non-governmental organizations, Adarsh strategically designed and executed initiatives aimed at uplifting communities and addressing the complex challenges faced by the tribal population.

Adarsh's evolution from a grassroots volunteer initiative to a registered and recognized entity underscores its resilience and commitment to effecting positive change. By catalyzing awareness and fostering collaborative development programs, Adarsh continues to play a pivotal role in reshaping the narrative of social progress and inclusivity in the region.

Principles:
Adarsh Shiksha Samiti embraces a distinctive developmental paradigm characterized by three fundamental principles:

i. Integrated Approach:

- The organization fervently advocates for an integrated approach to development, recognizing the pivotal role of stakeholders.
- The core of Adarsh's activities revolves around community mobilization and capacity building, primarily within the framework of village institutions.
- By adopting this approach, Adarsh aims to foster a heightened sense of resource ownership among the local population, thereby ensuring sustainability and a deeper impact.

ii. Decentralized Process:

- Adarsh Shiksha Samiti stands out for its commitment to decentralization throughout the project lifecycle.
- From project inception to completion, the decision-making process is deliberately decentralized and participatory, ensuring that the community plays a pivotal role in shaping the outcomes.
- This decentralized approach not only empowers the community but also aligns with the principles of participatory development.

iii. Need-Based Program:

- Adarsh Shiksha Samiti is unwaveringly dedicated to addressing community- specific needs.
- The organization dynamically engages with issues that are intrinsic to the community, fostering change and development through the implementation of a need-based program.
- The primary focus is on the deprived rural community, particularly women and youths living below the poverty line. By tailoring interventions to address specific needs, Adarsh ensures that its programs are not only impactful but also resonate with the realities of the communities it serves.

These principles collectively underscore Adarsh Shiksha Samiti's commitment to a participatory, community-driven, and sustainable approach to development. By championing an integrated and decentralized model that addresses the unique needs of the communities, the organization endeavors to create lasting positive change in the lives of those most in need.

Where we operate:

Adarsh operates within the challenging terrains of the Salumber block in Udaipur District, extending its reach to the adjoining blocks in Durgapur and Banswara Districts in the State of Rajasthan. The primary focus of its initiatives is the rural resource less poor, specifically targeting the deprived segments of the community, with a keen emphasis on women and youth residing below the poverty line.

The operational landscape unfolds in the formidable and uneven hilly terrain of the Aravalis, where nearly 42% of the area is deemed unsuitable for agriculture. Characterized by undulating topography, the north-eastern part exhibits plains, while the southwestern part is predominantly hilly. This challenging geography poses inherent difficulties for sustainable agricultural practices.

Situated within Agro-climatic Zone IV-A (Sub-Humid South Plain and Aravalli Hill Zone), the region experiences moderate rainfall and temperature variations ranging from 0ºC to 25ºC during winters and 26ºC to 50ºC in summers. The district receives an average rainfall of approximately 600 mm, distributed over an average of 30 rainy days annually. The inherent scarcity of surface-water and groundwater resources, coupled with prevalent heavy soil erosion, characterizes the district.

The district's climatic conditions, marked by sharp fluctuations and prolonged dry spells during monsoons, adversely impact crop yields, especially on marginal lands devoid of irrigation facilities. Adarsh operates in this challenging environment, striving to address the multifaceted needs of the local population by implementing tailored programs that resonate with the socio-economic and environmental dynamics of the region.

Why the operational area?

The operational landscape of Adarsh Shiksha Samiti is immersed in the ancient rhythms of tribal life, where Bhils and Meena communities paint the cultural canvas. Among them, the Bhils, custodians of a rich heritage, persist as the most backward, dwelling in scattered hamlets known as Phalas. Their lives are interwoven with the earth, relying on the rhythms of agriculture and the ebb and flow of animal husbandry, supplemented by the intermittent sustenance gleaned from nearby towns and neighboring states.

Yet, this picturesque tapestry conceals profound struggles. The economic heartbeat of the region echoes with the absence of industries, the haunting scarcity of water, and the palpable isolation that stems from limited connectivity. In the heart of this terrain lies a silent battlefield of familial strife, where the division of barren land becomes an emblem of conflict, casting shadows over generations.

The Bhils, once guardians of lush forests, now grapple with the haunting specter of depletion. The hills, once teeming with life, bear witness to the harsh erosion of natural resources—uncultivated, unyielding, and now fragmented by hilly terrain, meager rainfall and the paucity of irrigation. The Bhils' ploughs and bullocks, though few, tell tales of resilience in the face of adversity.

Education, a flickering flame, struggles to illuminate minds. The literacy rates, like fragile petals, struggle to bloom in the shadow of disparities. The census paints a portrait of educational longing, where the female literacy rate, in particular, is a poignant whisper—reverberating at 40.9%, echoing the silent battles waged in pursuit of knowledge.

In the realm of health services, echoes of tradition resonate. The locals, their trust rooted in ancestral wisdom, seek solace in traditional medicine. Yet, the silent cry of unmet health needs reverberates through the hills, veiled by the seasonal bustle of agricultural labor.

Livelihoods, fragile like the crops, dance on the edge of sustenance. Rain-fed agriculture, a delicate waltz with the clouds, mirrors the uncertainties etched into the lives of those who toil the earth. The forests, once providers, now witness the dance of survival—charcoal making, firewood sales, and the extraction of Non- Timber Forest Products (NTFPs) become threads of livelihood in the intricate fabric of life.

Women, the unsung heroines of this narrative, bear the weight of a silent struggle. The role of women, pivotal and indispensable, is overshadowed by low incomes and restricted access to education. Poverty, a silent architect of destiny, weaves a narrative where daughters are tethered to household routines and labor, their voices muted by societal norms.

Among the youth, dreams flicker like fireflies. The demographic canvas is painted with the hues of youth, vibrant and yearning. Yet, a significant portion, like petals in waiting, grapples with unemployment. Vulnerable, uneducated, and unskilled, their journey meanders towards the shadows, seeking sustenance and purpose.

The canvas, marred by challenges, calls for a brush of change.
Poverty, like a relentless storm, hovers over every aspiration. The migration of youth, a heart-wrenching exodus, echoes the desperation for livelihood. Poor health and education, like unhealed wounds, scar the landscape. The low status of women, a silent lament, stifles the symphony of societal progress.

Yet, in this landscape of challenges, Adarsh Shiksha Samiti emerges as a beacon— a promise etched in the folds of hills, a melody in the hushed whispers of streams. The organization's mission, to uplift and empower, transcends the stark realities, infusing the narrative with hope, resilience, and the transformative power of compassion. In the quietude of struggle, Adarsh Shiksha Samiti endeavors to rewrite the story, one chapter at a time, with the brushstrokes of empathy and the colors of change.

The Adarsh Team:

The dynamic and effective operation of Adarsh Shiksha Samiti is orchestrated by a team of qualified professionals hailing from diverse disciplines. At the helm of this organizational structure is the Governing Board, a visionary body intricately involved in shaping policies and steering administrative decisions. This body serves as the guardian of the organization's ethos, ensuring a strategic and cohesive approach to its mission.

Responsible for the hands-on execution and seamless implementation of various development programs are the Project Coordinators. They lead the charge, supported by a dedicated cadre of field officers and grassroots-level workers. The synergy within this tiered structure ensures that the organization's initiatives are not only well-planned but also effectively carried out on the ground.

A vigilant core team, consisting of the Secretary, Administrator, Project Coordinators, and Project Officers, forms the organizational backbone. Their collaborative efforts extend beyond mere oversight, encompassing the critical tasks of monitoring and evaluating the programs, ensuring that the impact is both meaningful and sustainable. In its commitment to transparency and accountability, Adarsh Shiksha Samiti welcomes representatives from funding agencies into the project area. This engagement facilitates program monitoring and evaluation, adding an extra layer of scrutiny to ensure that objectives are met and resources are optimally utilized.

Regular meetings among Project Officers further strengthen the organizational fabric. These sessions serve as forums for sharing progress updates and strategic planning, fostering a culture of collaboration and continuous improvement.

Financial integrity is upheld through periodic audits conducted by Chartered Accountants, and utilization certificates are meticulously submitted to the respective funding agencies. This commitment to fiscal responsibility not only ensures the proper stewardship of resources but also enhances the organization's credibility.

Beyond the professional cadre, Adarsh Shiksha Samiti thrives on the contributions of trained volunteers. These individuals, driven by a sense of altruism, actively participate in both field activities and organizational management. Their selfless commitment adds a layer of authenticity to the organization's ethos, making it truly people-centric.

The inclusive approach of the organization extends to the formation and nurturing of self-help groups, where members contribute not only to the internal management of their groups but also actively engage in the implementation of field-level activities. This collaboration between local volunteers and staff members creates a synergy that defines Adarsh Shiksha Samiti as a 'people-friendly organization.' It operates not just for the people but with the people, aligning efforts and achieving its overarching objectives through a shared commitment to community betterment.

  There are 23 women learning tailoring in the women's jail and out of them there are 30 to 40 more directly and when I asked them, they told that after getting this training, they will get their own tailoring and after getting the sewing certificate, whenever they are released from the jail, they will start their own business. Get employment by opening a sewing center.

Beautician and Silai Courses: Empowering Women for Sustainable Livelihoods:

In the pursuit of holistic community development, Adarsh Shiksha Samiti has dedicated significant efforts to empower young girls, boys, and women, both in urban and rural areas, to achieve financial independence.
